

ABSTRACT

Alloys known in prior art cannot be processed well enough for producing a part. According to the inventive method, the part is subjected to a thermal treatment in an intermediate step, which improves the processability thereof.